

Chairman's Statement

10 Minutes with the Chairman

"Coke and coking coal is in global short supply and would remain so in future"

Q. 1. How do you review the performance of the company in 2008-09?

- A. Gujarat NRE Coke operates in a unique industry segment, where it neither has peers, nor is the industry and its dynamics easily understood. Suffice to say, the fortunes of the industry, which is closely interlinked with the commodity cycles of coke and steel, is highly volatile. This volatility ensures that there always remain a natural entry barrier for small, marginal players on one hand and on the other, provides the company with a unique opportunity to use the down turns to invest in capacities as per the company's long term vision and prepare the ground to reap the benefits of the inevitable upturn that follows. That is the reason why, at any given point of time, the figures do not reflect the complete picture of the company, as the actual benefits of the huge expansion and integration work that is in progress will be available in near future. In the longer term, on a point to point basis, the picture that emerges of the company's growth, is tell tale and quite satisfactory, especially in the face of global recession. Though the year that has gone by was one of the tough ones for enterprises across the globe, we had our focus on growth and expansion, and needless to say, the progress made has been as per plan and satisfactory. In a nutshell, while I today review the entire year's performance, it has been a eventful and challenging one, but we have been able to take up the challenge in our stride, seize the opportunities that have opened up, invested in future, to reap the benefits in multiples when they mature.

Q. 2. You deal in a commodity that is a vital raw material to the steel making process, which in turn is cyclical in nature. Where do you see the steel industry heading? Where will this demand take Gujarat NRE in the benchmark year?

- A. The steel industry in India has been riding a perpetual growth trajectory for last five years except for a setback from the second half of 2008-09, caused by the global financial crisis. India's economy is largely domestic consumption led and accordingly it has been less affected by the deceleration in global economic growth when compared to other countries. As a result, Indian steel demand remains better than in many countries. The construction industry is expected to rise further due to the government's stimulus plan. The automotive sector is doing well. Hence, it is expected that domestic steel demand is going to recover soon and for the long term as well. According to the World Steel Association, India's apparent steel use is forecasted for 2009 is expected to see a 1.7% increase from 2008 and is expected to reach 58 million tonne in 2010 an increase of 8% YoY. As per recent announcements of the Steel Ministry, Government of India, Investment worth US$ 176.49 billion is likely to go into the steel sector by 2020, taking India's steel capacity to around 300 million tonnes. India is poised to be the world's 2nd largest producer of steel before 2016. As the fifth largest producer of steel, India now consumes an average of 25 - 30 million tonnes of coke. At about 300 million tonnes of steel, she will throw up a demand of roughly 120 - 150 million tonnes of coke by the year 2020, a sea of opportunity for merchant coke producers in India and a Mecca for coking coal producers worldwide.

Gujarat NRE Coke Ltd is geared up to take advantage of increased demand of coke, in face of existing severe short supply in India. We plan to invest in two additional over one million tonne coke facilities in Andhra Pradesh and Gujarat, taking our total capacity to around 4 million tonne in next 3-5 years. This would be further supplemented by increased production of coking coal in our Australian mines, which is slated to touch around 7 million tonnes per annum by 2014 -15.

Q. 3. NRE Stands for Natural Resource and Environment. How do you relate coal and environment? How do you claim to be environ friendly?

- A. I believe that coal is the most environment friendly commodity to deal with. Human civilization is hungry for energy to have the industry running, to put the turbines of the power plant in motion, and the wheels of his transports moving. Think of a civilization without coal and fossil fuels, where the only prime source of energy would have been trees. Forests by now would have turned to barren lands. Civilization would have been near extinct today due to large scale felling of trees and forests for want of energy.

Having said that, GNCL is an environmentally conscious and a responsible corporate citizen. The belief that environment conservation is fundamental to the survival of any organization combined with a desire to contribute more to the environment than what we acquire from it, has led us to adopt stringent pollution control measures. GNCL has in place the necessary safeguards to minimize environmental pollution through the complete combustion of volatile matter, and the gaseous emissions are well below the norms, by employing the best of technologies available. GNCL aims to extensively use wind energy to power its captive requirement. It has invested in 62 Wind Turbine Generators with a total capacity of 87.5 MW. The company is also investing in cogeneration of power using the heat generated during coke production to the tune of 60 MW, thus using all means at its disposal to be a green company. We take pride in our environment ethics-rainwater harvesting, green belt across all plants & wind energy to name a few. GNCL is a part of the emerging carbon credit market through Clean Development Mechanism (CDM) under the Kyoto Protocol agreement. The efforts of the company towards reducing greenhouse gas emissions have made the company eligible for earning carbon credits, which besides generating increased returns will strengthen its commitment of being a socially responsible citizen.

Q. 4. Gujarat NRE has been a pioneer in foraying into overseas coal mine ownership. The move has the potential of ensuring that you morph into a global resource giant. At what stage are the company's Australian operations?

- A. India has severe shortfall of good quality hard coking coal. It is estimated that by 2013 as per the current projections, India would need more than 75 million tonnes of coking coal. Australia has excellent resource of hard coking coal and is the primary source for imports to India. We went to Australia in search of coal, but bought mines in 2004 and made it our second home. The Australian experience has been both challenging and satisfying.

The investment and growth plans as well as the operations of our Australian subsidiary are perfectly on course and progressing as per plans. We have recently secured a Long Term Loan Facility of USD 50 million from a consortium of Indian banks which is being utilised to support & improve the existing infrastructure and facilities and develop new ones at NRE No. 1 & NRE Wongawilli collieries. The Gujarat NRE Group has earmarked plans to incur a further capital expenditure of over A$ 470 million by FY 2014 in addition to the existing A$ 250 million already incurred. Various other efforts are in place to ramp up production of ROM Coal from the mines to 7 million tonnes per annum by the year 2014-15. We aim to be one of the largest coking coal producers of Australia. We are the only independent Company listed in Australia having pure focus on hard coking coal while all the other hard coking coal reserves are owned by bigger resource conglomerates globally.

Gujarat NRE has made an off-market bid for Rey Resources Limited, an ASX Listed Company, which is focusing on the development of its thermal coal exploration assets in the Canning Basin, Western Australia. The Company announced its maiden JORC Resource of nearly 500 million tonnes of thermal coal in April 2009. The successful completion of the proposed takeover would allow diversification of the Company's asset base and to become a major player in the coal mining sector with resources of over 1 billion tonnes of coking and thermal coal.

Q.5. What is the differentiating factor that makes you peerless and the undisputed market leader? What are your plans to maintain the leadership position and increase stakeholder's wealth?

- A. In the past few years the company has made large investments in capacity expansion and integration. The company is ready to reap the fruits of these investments. The company's coke facility in Dharwad, Karnataka is ready for production. This provides the company extra leverage of enhanced capacity to meet the increasing demand of coke in India. Though the current recession had its effect in the consumption of coke in the global market, the domestic scenario has been bullish. India is one of the few countries that imported coke in 2008 and is also going to do so in 2009 as well, due to increased domestic consumption levels, which augurs well for merchant manufacturers of met coke in India. Demand for coke in India has been buoyant in the first half of 2009. Shortages of coking coal are adding to the pressure in the market. We plan to increase our capacity further by setting two plants of 1 million tonne each in Andhra Pradesh and Gujarat to take advantage of this ever yawning gap of demand and supply of coke in India. Consistent and reliable supply of coking coal from Australian mines adds to the company's advantage.

With China closing its coal mines and becoming a net importer of both coking coal and coal has created coke and coking coal a commodity of global short supply.

Going ahead, with our coal mines in Australia increasing production at one end as well as increase in our domestic coke production capacity will strengthen our value chain, insulate us from external effects of adverse price swings and transform us from a coke manufacturer into an integrated coking coal mining company. This would inevitably increase our valuation to that of an integrated mining company higher than those obtained today as a converter. We expect that the combination of the three factors – increased capacity and sale, widened sale and enhanced valuation – will grow the value of our stakeholders over the coming years.

REVIEW OF OPERATIONS

Indian economy has been on the fulcrum of a rapid growth trajectory since 2005-06 which remained unfazed till the global recession that rocked economies across the world in 2008-09 and India could not remain unscratched despite all talks of decoupling theories by economists. Economies across the world were faced with dwindling consumption levels resulting into fall in demand, and exports miserably hit in the worst ever slowdown since the great depression. Metallurgical Coke finds its major market in the Steel Industry; hence the consumption depends heavily on the dynamics of Steel Industry across the globe. Faced with declining auto sales and a near stop in all construction activities, steel industry especially in the developed countries faced severe crisis in 2008-09, with many opting for closure, idling of blast furnaces and prolonged suspension of works. Consequently, the met coke industry got hit, exports market nearly dried up and domestic demand receding in the last quarter.

The Company is one of the largest independent producer of met coke in India, the only Indian company to own and operate coking coal mines in Australia. This gives the company a unique advantage of having secured supply of the critical raw material i.e. coking coal and consequently, gaining the strength to withstand volatile and cyclical nature of this business.

Though faced with the odds of severe global recession during the year under review, the Company admirably reported a higher Net Sales of Rs. 1522.60 crores in the financial year ended March 31, 2009 as compared to Rs. 872.15 crores during the previous financial year growing by around 75%. However, massive pressure on margins and prices due to global meltdown in the second half of 2008-09 and the adverse movement of the Indian rupee versus US Dollar resulted in the Company ending the year with the Net profit of Rs 107.24 crores (Previous Year - Rs. 172.88 crores).

DIVIDEND

The Directors are pleased to recommend a dividend of Re.1/- per share for the year ended March 31, 2009 on post bonus capital as compared to Rs.2.50 per share for the year ended March 31, 2008. This is the 8th consecutive year of dividend payment and the company has made/declared 13 dividends in last 8 years including the dividend for the year 2008-09.

These Non-convertible Debentures have been listed at Bombay Stock Exchange. The Company has further raised a sum of Rs. 40 crores from Corporation Bank and Rs.10 crores from State Bank of Hyderabad through issue of NCDs since the close of the year under review. The aforesaid NCD issues are in addition to NCDs worth Rs. 100 crores issued to Axis Bank Ltd in the preceding year.

STATUS OF FCCBs

The Company had made two consecutive issues of Foreign Currency Convertible Bonds (FCCBs) in 2005 & 2006. During the year under review, FCCBs worth USD 75000 out of Unsecured 1% FCCBs of USD 55 million issued in 2005 (due in 2010) were converted to 68,208 shares and this conversion along with conversions in earlier year resulted in 99.93% of these FCCBs being converted by the year end leaving bonds worth only USD 150,000 as outstanding.

Further, at the year end, bonds worth USD 22.50 million remain outstanding out of Unsecured Zero Coupon FCCBs of USD 60 million issued in 2006 and due in 2011. Management Discussion and Analysis

Industry Structure and developments

Economy

In the summer of 2008, the United States experienced a startling contraction in wealth, triggered by the subprime crisis, which carved its route to the largest financial shock since the Great Depression. In spite of the current global recession being the worst in recent memory, in India, the downturn has been more muted than the previous ones. The most obvious fact is that the gross domestic product (GDP) growth has been much higher in the current slowdown. The growth rate of GDP at factor cost is 6.5% higher than the average of the last two slowdowns (2002-03 and 1997-98). Though no economy can be insulated from the wrath of such massive recession, Indian Economy managed to survive better due to the fact that our growth story is not based on export market entirely, but on domestic demand-driven, which helped us to grow faster even as the world is trying to come in terms with the negatives. This has resulted in the exuberance and confidence that is being espoused on the Indian growth story. The World Bank has projected (in its Global Development Finance Report) that the Indian economy will grow at 8% in 2010, which would make it the fastest-growing economy in the world for the first time, surpassing China, which is projected to grow at 7.7% rate. According to Goldman Sachs, the Indian economy and the financial sector are returning to a "potential growth path" after adjusting to intense dislocation in the global economic environment.

India's economy has been one of the stars of global economics in recent years, growing 9.2% in 2007 and 9.6% in 2006. Growth had been supported by markets reforms, huge inflows of FDI, rising foreign exchange reserves, both an IT and real estate boom, and a flourishing capital market. During the year 2008-09, there has been a dip in the growth rate of GDP from an average of over 9 per cent in the previous three fiscal years to 6.7 per cent which is a much better performance compared to the economies world over. The economic growth forecast made by the Prime Minister's Economic Advisory Council was 7.1% for fiscal year 2009. IMF, in its World Economic Outlook, has projected India's GDP growth at 5.1% for the current fiscal.

There are still a few areas of concern, where adequate steps need to be taken. Exports would be hit due to the low demand in the developed countries of Europe, the US and Japan, which would have a spiralling effect on the manufacturing sector. Indian industry has to innovate and find newer markets instead of traditional markets of the West and also devise means to tap the growing domestic consumption.

Higher interest rates and a weakening global and domestic outlook have caused companies to scale back investment. The structural transformation that has been adopted by the government in recent times has reduced growth constraints and contributed greatly to the overall growth and prosperity of the country.

World Coke Industry

The Iron & Steel industry have been one of the worst affected sectors worldwide as an outcome of the global recession. As a result, the global met coke market has been hit. The silver lining being that the Asian consumption levels led by India and China have not experienced any drastic cut, which are keeping the order book moving and keeping the industry alive. World coke production was 542.2 million tonnes in 2008, out of which the lion's share of 60% was contributed by China. Even before the onset of the recession, coke industry was facing closures in Europe and the manufacturing focus was shifting to Asia. Total European production was 49.2 million tonnes, down by 5.1% from 2007, while North American production also saw a decrease of 5.7% and stood at 19 million tonnes. China's domestic coke consumption and market has seen a robust growth in the back of stimuli packages and government's thrust on infrastructure spending. Faced with a slump in demand in the Western Economies and a robust growth in the domestic market, Chinese coke exports dropped by almost 97% in January-June 2009 as compared to the same period last year. For the first six months of the year China's coke export volume totalled about 230,000 tonnes which is no way near to the average monthly export figures of 1.1 million tonne in early 2008. Analysts believe that the later part of the second half of the year would see some recovery in the world Iron and Steel industry in the West, which would improve the export figures of the coking coal industry.

Domestic Coke Industry

Despite India being third largest producer and consumer of coal in the world, only 17% of India's proven coal reserves are of coking coal quality, with just 4.7% in prime coking category. Due to scarce availability of good quality coking coal in India, bulk of it is imported mainly from Australia and China. Met coke being derivative of coking coal, the Indian Coke Industry has to heavily depend on imports of coking coal due to insufficient domestic reserves. Certainty of supply of good quality coking coal has been one of the prime differentiating factors of the Indian Met Coke industry.

Demand for coke in India has been buoyant in the first half of 2009. Shortages of coking coal are adding to the pressure in the market. India produced 18.5 million tonnes of coke in 2008, which was higher than 2007 figures of 18.2 million tonnes and marginally lower than 2006 peak figures of 18.9 million tonnes. India imported 2.3 million tonnes of coke in 2008 and inspite of all talks of recession, India is poised to import around 1.7 million tonnes in 2009 as well, due to increased domestic consumption levels, which augurs well for merchant manufacturers of met coke in India.

Indian Steel Industry

India's economy is largely domestic consumption led and accordingly it has been less affected by the deceleration in global economic growth when compared to other countries. As a result, Indian steel demand remains better than in many countries. The construction industry is expected to rise further due to the government's stimulus plan. The automotive sector is doing well. Hence, it is expected that domestic steel demand is going to recover soon and for the long term as well. According to the World Steel Association, India's apparent steel use is forecasted to reach 53.5 million tonne in 2009, a 1.7% increase from 2008 and is expected to reach 58 million tonne in 2010 an increase of 8% YoY. Capacity expansion projects are still on track. Although some projects have been delayed, there have been no announcements of cancellation of major projects.

Opportunities & Threats

The demand for steel in the Indian domestic market is likely to be buoyant as a result of sustained growth of major steel-consuming sectors like infrastructure and automobile and overall industrial growth which would be further boosted by increased government spending and persistent focus on investments in infrastructure, as demonstrated in the recent Union Budget.

As per recent announcements of the Steel Ministry, Government of India, Investment worth US$ 176.49 billion is likely to go into the steel sector by 2020, taking India's steel capacity to around 300 million tonnes. India is poised to be the world's 2nd largest producer of steel before 2016. India's steel production will be nearly 124 MT by 2012 from the current levels of around 53 million tonnes. With steel production in India aimed to reach 300 MT by 2020, per capita consumption would shoot to over 220 Kg in just 10 years from the current level of 40 Kg per capita consumption. As the fifth largest producer of steel, India now consumes 30 MT of coke. At about 300 MT of steel, she will throw up a demand of roughly 150 MT of coke by the year 2020, a sea of opportunity for steel and raw material producers like the met coke industry in India.

China plays an important role in global coke market. Its policies affect the supply of coke and consequently the price movement of met coke. Continued levy of export tax by China had immediate impact of raising met coke prices globally. Similarly, any measures taken by China to reverse levy of export tax on or to dump met coke in the world market would adversely affect met coke prices. Coke prices, like that of all other commodities are cyclical in nature. While many try to ride the cycle, no one can claim complete knowledge of the same which continues to baffle and burn with impunity.

Company's Performance

The income from operations of the Company stood at Rs. 357.01 crores in the year under review as compared to Rs.282.99 crores during the previous year (i.e., an increase by 26%). However, the net profit stood at Rs.107.24 crores as compared to Rs.172.88 crores during the previous year on account of severe pressure on margins due to devaluation of rupee against US Dollar and global meltdown. Accordingly, the Basic & Diluted earnings per share of the Company were reported at Rs.2.27 and Rs.1.97 respectively, for the year under review as compared to Rs.4.24 and Rs.3.59 respectively,during the previous year.

Segment wise Performance and Outlook

Coke & Coal

Coke has been at the core of the operations of the Company with this segment contributing around 81% to the total turnover during the year under review. It achieved a turnover of Rs.1231.18 crores during the year as compared to Rs. 638.28 crores during the previous year resulting in an increase by 92% on an annualized basis.

Steel

Steel contributes 19% to the total turnover in the third year of its commercial operations. It achieved a turnover of Rs. 289.24 crores during the year under review as compared to Rs.237.80 crores during previous year resulting in an increase of 21% on an annualised basis. The steel plant is also enjoying the benefits like tax and duty exemptions as per applicable Schemes.

The Company is generating power through its Wind Turbines and is in the process of setting up co-generation power plant as well as add to its Wind Turbines to reduce its power costs and ensure regular supply of clean power to its production facilities.

Outlook

During the current year, both the prices of coking coal as well as coke are expected to remain stagnant at around USD 100-150 and USD 350-400 respectively for mixed reasons. Recessionary trends in global markets and shortage of availability of good quality coking coal are expected to govern the movement of both coke and coking coal prices.

The current year started with steel industry witnessing poor demand and resultant cutbacks in production by most of the big producers. However, as the year progressed, the demand has slowly started looking up and is expected that the year would end with most of the steel producers producing at their full capacities. This would ensure a sustained growth and consistent demand.

Risks and Concerns

There are certain business risks which are external to the Company although there is a systematic risk identification and mitigation framework in place. Over these risks, the Company has very little control.

Some of the risks include a general downturn in market demand conditions, policies and pricing adopted by China, the largest supplier of met coke, global demand of steel, escalation of prices of raw materials i.e. coking coal due to short supply, abrupt movement of forex etc.

Risk is regularly reviewed, monitored and managed under the following broad categories apart from other categories –

- Market Risk – As major portion of demand for coke is generated by steel industry, the economics of Steel industry heavily weighs on the fate of coke industry. The Company has however tried to minimise this impact by having a diversified portfolio of customers in India and abroad.
- Production Risk - China being the largest supplier of coking coal (raw material) to the global market, the policies adopted by China in this regard can have major impact. Your company has insulated itself against the risk of raw materials by acquiring coking coal mines in Australia to ensure regular supply of this critical raw material.
- Forex Risk – With high dependency on imports, the Company is exposed significantly to the exchange rate fluctuations. The management tracks currency rates and effects prudent hedges to reduce adverse impact of foreign currency fluctuations.

Risk Management is an ongoing process based on the dynamics of Risk environment. At Gujarat NRE, we continuously seek to improve and enhance our ability to identify risks and plan responses thereto.
